Part of my submitted evidence is going include facts about self assembling nano technology covertly being added to the Covid 19 “Vaccine”, flu shots. botox, dental anaesthetic, and nearly all injectables in addition to being in the food supply for the past several years, in geoengineering and the potentially the water supply. Had the FCC obeyed the court order in a timely manner, it is quite possible none of those things would contain the nano technology. I believe the FCC and/or the companies that influence it may share some responsibility in this respect, should lawsuits by people being unknowingly injected with self assembling nano tech be successfully tried in a court of law. Additionally, the weaponized street light and transmitter infrastructure being used to target people via the AI, ALPR (automatic license plate reader) program may also have been avoided had the FCC obeyed the court order in a timely manner. And finally, the weaponization of electromagnetic radiation to be used experimentation-ally in the “quarantine camps”, aka concentration camps that have been built in every state for use under the guise of “emergency” or “help from FEMA” or another government agency or government funded company when a natural disaster or other disaster hits, is a plan for crimes against humanity and is the modern day version of Dr. Josef Mengel. Although those experiments can be performed remotely, there are plans to perform them at the camps as well. Both scenarios must be rejected and immediately acted upon to stop the perpetrators of these crimes against humanity.

I became electrosensitive (civilian term, microwave radiation poisoned - approx. military term) about 20 years ago. I noticed strange sensation on the side of my head where I used my cell and cordless phone. I also slept with the WIFI router right near my head as was the cordless base station. After a cursory look into the matter, I was shocked at what I was finding. How could this technology be legal? How could it be sold without even warning people about the harm? My symptoms actually became worse after having stopped using a cell and cordless phone and upon moving to Santa Monica, CA, when unbeknownst to me, I had moved a block and a half from a stealth cell antenna farm...approx. 25 antennas on a roof top, blasting out into the neighborhood, 24/7. Soon after, I became totally electrosensitive, meaning I could no longer function normally in society as others could. I watched in astonishment as my world rapidly closed down around me. I could no longer go to my favorite coffee shop because the WIFI would make me sick, or worse yet, would get so tired after forcing myself to be in the WIFI at the coffee shop, that I would actually fall asleep behind the wheel when driving home, only 10 minutes away. I now know this was from rouleaux formation, where the red blood cells stick together, oxygen can't get in, waste product can't get out and you became extraordinarily tired. But where I was experiencing even more symptoms was in my own home...ringing in my ears despite not using a cell or cordless phone, headaches, extreme loss of energy - I would feel like I was in my 90s, while still in my late 30s - early 40s. Also the leaves on the trees outside my apartment were getting holes in them, turning brown and crumbling - in the spring. I was then diagnosed with pre-cancerous cells and had to have surgery. I began to suspect I was being slowly microwaved. So I measured the radiation in my apartment and found between 100 - 350 $\mu\text{W}/\text{M}^2$. By today's standards for average exposure in a home, that is nothing. But at the time, it was a lot. So I began getting into my car every evening and driving to a street that had less radiation than the others and sleeping there. Funny enough, I found another electrosensitive had also discovered this street. However that proved to be an unsafe situation and after an incident one night, I stopped sleeping there. Around this time I also found out the cell towers had more of a right to be there than I did according to "the law", So I decided to move out of my beloved city of Santa Monica and into a more rural area, of Topanga, CA, only to find out after the fact, the apartment I had moved into was outfitted with an early cousin of a smart meter...a wireless meter that was pre-smart meter roll out, but just as damaging to biology. I was unable to sleep in my own apartment due to the heart palpitations it was giving me, the migraine headaches, loss of energy, ringing in the ears and some new symptoms of nausea, dizziness and one evening, I felt a pulse travel up from the bottom of my foot, right into my heart. That was all I needed. I began sleeping in my car again, this time in the woods of Topanga until I could get the meter removed, which I found to be an impossible feat since I didn't own the building. So after getting into it with the landlord about the wireless meter, I decided to move yet again. Eventually, after 2 more moves, I found an apartment that did not have a wireless meter of any kind and grabbed it. However, there was still the matter of the neighbor's WIFI seeping in through the walls to contend with. At first it wasn't that bad. But after a short time, I realized there was too much radiation in the bedroom and office for me to be able to use those areas of the apartment. So I moved into the living room and rented out the rooms I could not use. But over the years, the wireless industry just kept upping the power density and probably everything else too (pulse modulations, frequencies, etc). After becoming so sick from being in my own apartment that I started vomiting, I started measuring the radiation...250,000 $\mu\text{W}/\text{M}^2$! Simply from a neighbors WIFI router! I got extension cords for my hard wired phone, internet and electric and moved into the parking lot of the building. There I stayed for 3 years, working and sleeping in my SUV, until eventually I wrote a legal letter to my landlord (something I never wanted to do) which prompted her to ask the other tenants to hard wire their internet connections. One did, the other didn't, but the radiation had been lowered enough by the one neighbor hard wiring their internet connection, which brought the levels down enough that I was able to block the other neighbors signals by building a faraday cage with 2 layers of shielding. It should be known that 10 layers of shielding could not block the 250,000 $\mu\text{W}/\text{M}^2$ levels of radiation being emitted from the one neighbors router, but when lowered to approx. 50 - 500 $\mu\text{W}/\text{M}^2$, the shielding that is available to consumers is able to block the radiation, with enough distance and if doubled up.

To this day, the majority of the apartment is unusable to me and I am forced to dwell in the safety of my faraday cage, which I am grateful for, but what kind of a life is this where I cannot participate in nearly ANY major life activity due to the now ubiquitous wireless radiation permeating nearly every square inch of modern life? I can no longer fly because the 3 WIFI routers in the fuselage on the plane emit 350,000 $\mu\text{W}/\text{M}^2$ on average (this was approx. 8 years ago last time I was able to fly - it may be higher now) and after a mere hour and a half plane ride I end up vomiting and being sick with a migraine headache, liver, kidney and other health problems for 2 or 3 days. Driving is also an issue due to all the cell towers with an endless supply of microwaves being emitted from them. Needless to say, my life has been impacted by this radiation, which governments and businesses alike, fight accommodating, because that would mean creating a radiation free space, admitting that their radiation is extremely toxic to human and environmental health and possibly not even being able to use it for the upcoming plan of 15 minute cities. Also the license plate readers are much more than mere license plate readers...they connect to an AI hub where you are sorted into someone who should be targeted by the 5G in the street lights and lamp posts and other cellular infrastructure or just be allowed to be "normally" irradiated. I fall into the former category, so now when I drive, I am hit with 3,000,000 $\mu\text{W}/\text{M}^2$ unless I somehow mask my license plate, which then brings in issues of legality with the police...you can easily get pulled over and ticketed for covering your license plate, which has already happened.

As if all that weren't bad enough, I was also placed in an illegal program which will soon be rolled out upon the general public, but which is in the testing phase right now, although tens of thousands of Americans, if not more are currently in it. It is the AI, read/write to the brain program, which operates on signals that are out of range of the consumer available shielding or the meters the public has to measure...some meters can measure these signals but they cost upwards of $30,000 and shielding might consist of a solid metal enclosure, which is too depressing for most people to live in. The AI read/write to the brain program utilizes the nano tech that has been found to be in nearly all injectables globally (including the Covid 19 vaccine) and which has been ingested by the general public for the past approx. 6 years, as it has also been placed in the food supply, the geoengineering and water supply of many communities. The signals are sent out via satellite or sometimes via cell tower and create ringing in the ears and headaches, can read your thoughts, has the ability via AI to send you ads for that which you are thinking about but have not yet spoken about to anyone or even written an email or sent a text message about and can also even add to or delete ones thoughts and memories. It creates a constant, inescapable hissing in the ears, constant headaches, loss of energy and many of the symptoms previously mentioned with wireless radiation exposure, but now with the more intensified risk of nearly all neurological illnesses including but not limited to, early onset Alzheimers, Parkinsons and ALS. Nearly all neurological illnesses are on the table with this new read/write to the brain technology. I often put off going to the dentist for months if not years because I don't want to be further injected with this self assembling nano technology and graphene oxide (used to make people more conductive), for which the BBB (blood brain barrier) and other organs have no natural defense against. The self assembling nano tech can then be directed by signals, into various organs, including brain and reproductive and wreak havoc on any living system it has been embedded in or is directed to embed in... yes, it can be directed with microwave signals. I have found nothing on the market that is able to screen the self assembling nano tech out of the dental anaesthetic and therefor am just injected with billions of nano tech chips every time I go to get a cavity drilled or other have other dental work done. This is to say nothing of the very real ability for AI to steal peoples ideas, log in credentials and passwords to financial institutions and any other information not shared outside of the individuals mind. The neurological illnesses that are now going to be rising exponentially due to this involuntarily ingested, invasive, self assembling nanotech, AI, read/write to the brain program is going to be record breaking. I would also like to add that other parts of the body are also hit, it is not just the brain. If the whole body is bathed in the signal, it can activate what have been lying dormant due to the extra added artificial stress being added to a body that normally would be able to fight off such pre-existing conditions, such as a history of cancer, auto immune and other serious illnesses. Let us also not forget that federal employees of the State Department and other federal employees are currently being compensated for their neurological damage from their microwave attacks being called Havana Syndrome. Recently the Dept of War's Havana Syndrome Team has renamed itself. The Anonymous Health Incidents Cross Functional Team has now become the Directed Energy Bio-Effects Cross-Functional Team, but to this day, no regular citizen has been compensated for their directed energy exposure. Only federal employees and the attacks just keep coming on civilians. Those in the experimental phase of the AI, read/write to the brain program also need compensation for what this has been done to them, but most importantly, the program needs to be STOPPED. This is far worse than taxation without representation. This is attacks on innocent citizen populations with weapons of mass destruction, recognized as such for federal employees but not for average US citizens.

More weaponization of wireless technology: ALPR (automatic license plate readers) and the AI fusion centers the info is reported to. Recently, I noticed i was getting extremely sick just from driving 1/2 an hour in Los Angeles traffic. Sick for 2 and 3 days. I decided to measure the radiation I was driving in. 3,000,000 $\mu\text{W}/\text{M}^2$! No wonder I was getting so sick. I then decided to experiment with my license plate and obscure it. Lo and behold, I was able to take the same drive without getting sick, with a radiation reduction of approx. 3,000 - 30,000%, and I was able to block much of it with my shielding. However, I was promptly pulled over and ticketed. The American public should not have to choose between getting sick or being ticketed, merely to take a half hour drive without getting hit with directed energy weaponry emanating from the cellular, lighting/camera/public right of way pole or satellite infrastructure that works in harmony with AI to target certain drivers and most likely pedestrians through their biometrics or their smart phone. This has rapidly turned into electromagnetic warfare against an unsuspecting populous. Although it is not the job of the FCC to oversee domestic warfare from various government agencies, companies and/or foreign adversaries, the fact that the FCC has yet to conduct its review of the safety standards or guidelines, is in essence aiding and abetting these electromagnetic bad actors who are waging a silent war on the American people and it should not be tolerated by the public, politicians, law enforcement, or anyone in a position to do something about it. But that then begs the question, although all of this is highly illegal, why are the powers that be not stopping it? We have the 2nd Amendment to make sure government does not become tyrannical. However, the 2nd Amendment is useless in the face of invisible, silent, odorless, wireless, electromagnetic weaponry, such as what has been rolled out onto a trusting and unsuspecting public. Especially if that electronic weaponry is coming from outer space, as much of it now is, in addition to coming from cell towers, smart phones and smart meters, all of which was forced upon the public and WIFI is being used to further violate peoples Constitutional right to privacy and see through their walls. Space weaponry can be controlled terrestrially, so that is one possible saving grace and the terrestrial wireless infrastructure and devices can also be controlled terrestrially, but not if the wireless industry and military industrial complex is calling all the shots through the FCC and not if they can't be controlled through the legal system, which it seems has been the case. We hope this current legal action changes that and that the FCC take all of the evidence into account, especially the newer self assembling nano technology and satellite, cell antenna and smart meter targeting system.

The Judges orders were clear to the FCC re: reviewing the standards or guidelines. The FCC has stood in violation of a court order for 5 years now. The FCC must take into account all of the above new and advanced wireless technologies, including self assembling nano tech, satellites and the wireless infrastructure and devices interacting with and directing it, when conducting their review of the standards or guidelines. If the FCC has insufficient scientific or health background with which to conduct their review, then an independent body must be immediately be formed (within 30 days, give or take) to implement guard rails, safety standards and guidelines. This independent body must be comprised of independent scientists, victims of wireless technology (current sufferers of electromagnetic radiation poisoning and/or targeting) and most importantly, must NOT be predominantly wireless industry funded scientists. Let us also not forget that we established in our lawsuit against the FCC: that there is no safe level of wireless radiation whatsoever for children or the environment and of course the thermal standards set for adults is a false premise of safety, absent pulse modulation, frequency, power density below non thermal levels and all non thermal effects.

Thank you for taking into account the above personal story, the crimes against humanity that are currently being committed via satellite and other wireless infrastructure targeting and experimentation, the plans to continue this electromagnetic experimentation in the quarantine camps that have been built under the guise of helping Americans in a natural disaster, but will be used for electromagnetic experimentation on the inhabitants, my attached documents with this submission and for incorporating all links by reference that were in pdfs when I received them so could not add that sentence to the document.
